Published four times a year (October, January, April, July) by the Alumnae Association of the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina, Greensboro. Admitted as second-class matter at the postoffice in Greensboro, N. C., June 29, 1912. Single copies, 50 cents.

The Cover: Was it theirs? . . . Commencement Weekend, that is. The Class of 1957 and more than 500 Alumnae shared the campus and College activities from May 31 through June 2.

What to do and Where to go? questions were answered by registrars in the Virginia Dare Room.

During Commencement Weekend

With the winking daisy over her shoulder, Blanche (Austin) Thies '07 does her bit for the Alumnae Fund.

AFTER a rather late-in-the-week History exam on Friday morning (May 31), enough Freshmen evacuated the campus (and their beds) to allow more than 500 Alumnae who registered and sought overnight accommodations housing space in Coit, Cotten, and Jamison Halls. (Commencement Weekend activities really began on Friday morning when 158 members of the Commercial Class received certificates at their "commencement" exercises in the Elliott Hall Ballroom.) Registration, begun at 4:00 in the afternoon, continued until 10:00 on Friday night, and from 8:00 until closing time, "returnees" gathered in the Alumnae House for coffee and/or lemonade. Maybe "flocked" would be a better term . . . the refreshments which are usually over-prepared, proved to be a little under-prepared. Social Chairman Jane (Davis) Lambert had to dash to "the Corner" to buy more coffee. It was wonderful . . . folks just kept coming.

Bleary-eyed Alumnae reporters on Saturday morning told student-like tales of staying up way into the night (and morning) just talking. The excitement of the day, however, roused even those with no sleep, and the suitable reward for checking-by the Alumnae House to register if that had not been done on Friday and to meet late-comers was eye-opening coffee. This choice of refreshment proved to be a helpful one because the Associational meeting in the Elliott Hall Ballroom which began about 10:30 turned out to be a lengthy one.

President Emily (Harris) Preyer presided at the meeting and first-off introduced Nancy Porter, chairman of the Undergraduate Relations Committee, who moved that the 483 members of the Class of '57 be accepted into membership (seconded and unanimously passed). Nancy introduced Sadye Dunn, everlasting president of the class, who in turn introduced the other everlasting officers. Emily then

The Class of '57 gathered on tree-shaded Front Campus for their last class meeting.

I think it significant and appropriate that I cannot hold in my hand in formal presentation the gift from the Class of 1957, for any semblance of our feelings for the Woman's College is of necessity bigger than any one person. It is with this thought in mind that we present our gift: that we have learned, and hope the classes to follow will remember, that the standards and influence of the Woman's College must transcend wherever we go. Thus we leave, as a lasting reminder of our unification with all other institutions of life, the Flag of the United States of America.

introduced Annie (Kizer) Bost, who introduced the morning's speaker, Dr. Ellen Winston, State Commissioner of Public Welfare. In her remarks Dr. Winston brought her audience face-to-face with their responsibilities as educated, college-trained women in the state and in the nation. At the end of the speech, Emily proceeded with the Association's business: the reporting of committees, the awarding of galvanized buckets (in lieu of silver loving cups) to the Class of '47 for the largest number registered for the weekend, to the Class of '07 for the largest percentage registered, to the Classes of '17 and '56 for the largest percentage of contributors to the 1956 Alumnae Fund among the reunioning classes, and to the Class of '52 for the largest amount contributed to the Fund among the reunioning classes. And business followed business . . . through it all the audience was gratefully patient and attentive.

Every one was ready, though, for the "hike" down Walker Avenue to Coleman Gymnasium and a buffet-type luncheon which a group of ladies from the Browns Summit Methodist Church had prepared. Each reunioning class had its own table spread with fried chicken, deviled eggs, sandwiches, pickles and olives, potato salad, caramel cake, iced tea and coffee. There was a spot for non-reunioners and guests, too. A floor show followed the "feasting": puppets Alma Mater and Adelaide Alumna were typical reunioners back to exchange tales of their exploits since graduation; "the daisies" sang, not for their lunch, but for the Alumnae Fund; and representatives from each of the reunioning classes paraded fashions fashionable in their student days. The group dispersed for individual class meetings after the show, and a non-reunioner could only guess the amounts of conversation and catching-up which must have taken place in these meetings.

CLASS DAY at 4:30 was the first Senior function of the week end. The afternoon was sunny, and the Seniors and their parents and friends gathered under the trees (just off College Avenue) for their last class meeting. Lu Stephenson, Jo Anne Safrit, and Neil McLeod were their chosen speakers, and Class Day Chairman Sharon Lupton's program went off without a hitch. With the singing of "their song" What Is Woman's College and the changing of the colors, Class Day . . . 1957 was over. Alumnae actively picked-up again at a "Meet the Chancellors Open House." Acting-Chancellor and Mrs. Pierson and Chancellor-Elect and Mrs. Blackwell greeted the Alumnae as they came into the Virginia Dare Room for a cup of tomato juice before the Alumnae Supper.

Time records were broken in the buffet-serving of the Alumnae Supper; within thirty minutes 400 people were seated in the Elliott Hall Ballroom with their supper of ham, turkey, fruit salad, sweet potato soufflé, green beans, relishes, fruit tarts, coffee or iced tea. During the latter part of the meal, many were lucky enough to be able to put down their forks and raise their hands to signify that their ticket number had been drawn for one of the door prizes which were donated for the occasion by Cone Mills, Burlington Industries, J. P. Stevens, Blue Bell, Justice Drug Company, and Vick Chemical Company. The P. Lorillard Company gave sample cigarettes for each guest, and the Southern Bell Telephone Company, matches.

The Seniors fittingly brought to a close the Alumnae Supper with sketches from their show "Didja Evah?" . . . a somewhat historically - jumbled satire on NCCW. How appropriate that the Alumnae could see themselves as the students of today though they acted when they, too, were students! And it was such a perfect climax for Alumnae Day to close with the Seniors singing What Is Woman's College. At 7:30 it was all over, and thanks to the Dillard Paper Company and their donation of the weekend's paper products, by 8:30 the Ballroom was cleared and the Seniors were coming in for the Ball . . . "Mist In Indigo" was the theme. It is said that many Alumnae who had stayed up late on Friday night could not resist, even for lost sleep, watching the dancers well into Saturday night. For those who were ready to sit and hear music, the College Choir and Greensboro Orchestra presented an evening concert in Aycock Auditorium.

GOLDEN CHAIN Alumnae joined the student-links for breakfast in the Alumnae House on Sunday morning before the Baccalaureate Sermon. Dr. Robert Todd Liston, president of King College in Bristol, Tennessee, preached the sermon. Afterwards the faculty of the College entertained the Seniors, their families and guests, and remaining Alumnae at a reception in Elliott Hall.

The weather which had behaved so nicely all week end began "to show itself" in mid-afternoon. Trustingly, preparations for an outdoor graduation ceremony went ahead as planned . . . more chairs were set-up on the lawn in front of the Library than Aycock Auditorium had seats. But the one chance in ten for a shower, which the weatherman had predicted, materialized. Shortly before 6:00 the outdoor plan was abandoned, and the exercises were held in the auditorium. Governor Luther Hodges, University President William Friday, and Acting-Chancellor W. W. Pierson spoke to the graduates.

Sadye Dunn, their everlasting president, spoke for them: The beginning differs from the ending . . . the setting out from the coming back. Recall a trip. At first you know simply that you are going. There is the early morning sun, the noise of wind rushing through the open window; there is an air of excitement and anxious chatter; the singing of songs—old songs, hilarious antic-songs; the scenery hurries by. Soon a landmark is seen and you are there. The coming back is different. There is the mellowness of late sunshine, the quiet hum of the wind; the trees and clouds become your silent inspiring companions; the songs are individually whispered, bringing back places—faces. You look out and see the cattle slowly plodding barn-ward, and one early star in a darkening sky overlooks the land of maturation . . . the going home, the coming back. Perhaps this strange analogy will come as a shock to our parents when I apply it to their daughters—to our process of growth over four years' time. We began in the early morning sun; every tissue of our being tingled with youthful anticipation and we talked; we searched for the college days as the Ivy Leaguers assured us they would be; we sang the song of pleasure, of friendship, of being a part of a spirit, of having a blue jacket and class song; occasionally we remembered that our grades would go home, that we must major in something; often the scenery passed by unnoticed. But we were on our way, and even then we knew who provided the transportation. We reached a landmark.

It was about Junior year when we felt the mellowness of late sunshine and in this atmosphere we knew the journey toward our goal had really begun. It was then that we looked up and saw the star and we reached. In our pursuit of knowledge and in our constant evaluation of ourselves we moved on, and we could see. Our songs were individually whispered, bringing back persons at home who loved us and believed in us, persons of wisdom who sustained this belief as we lived at the Woman's College, the State whose financial and cultural contributions added to our growth . . . and you have been our silent inspiring companions. We know that every pure and beautiful thing, be it a child, a love, or a single pearl, has its beginning in simplicity, and when nourished becomes lasting and impermeable. The ending has

Faculty Retirements

“All honor to your name(s) we give . . .”

THEIR years of service total 274 . . . the eleven members of the Faculty and Staff who retired from their work at the end of the 1956-1957 session. Their years of influence on the now-Alumnae of the College total a similar number of years for the present and an inestimable number for the future.

Louise Brevard Alexander	1935-1957	22 years of service
	Professor of Political Science until her retirement in 1956-57, after which time she continued as Lecturer in Political Science.
Boleta Frojen	1955-1957	2 years of service
	Visiting Associate Professor of Home Economics.
Magnhilde Gullander	1918-1957	39 years of service
	Professor of History until her retirement in 1956-57, after which time she continued as Lecturer in History.
Mildred Harris	1924-1957	33 years of service
	Professor of Health until her retirement in 1956-57, after which time she continued as Lecturer in Health.
Mimmie Middleton Hussey	1930-1957	27 years of service
	Assistant Circulation Librarian.
Albert S. Keister	1924-1957	33 years of service
	Professor of Economics and Head of the Department of Economics until his retirement in 1956-57, after which time he continued as Lecturer in Economics.
John C. Lockhart	1943-1957	14 years of service
	Business Manager of the College.
Franklin H. McNutt	1941-1957	16 years of service
	Associate Dean of the Graduate School of the University and Professor of Education.
Alleine Minor	1913-1957	44 years of service
	Professor of Piano.
Jane Summerell	1926-1957	31 years of service
	Professor of English until her retirement in 1956-57, after which time she continued as Lecturer in English.
Katherine E. Wright	1920-1931 1955-1957	13 years of service

... on Dedications Markers Memorials

SOME TIME AGO the Board of Trustees of the Consolidated University of North Carolina named two buildings on the Woman's College campus: the Home Economics building was designated the Mary Frances Stone Building, and the building known to many Alumnae as the Old Library was designated the E. J. Forney Building. During the spring, at Stone Building on April 30 and in Forney Building on May 31, memorial tablets were unveiled during dedicatory ceremonies.

Jessie Potts '47, who is a member of the Home Economics faculty and who was an Home Economics-Institution Management major with Mary Frances Stone '47 for whom the building was named, paid this tribute to her "classmate and very good friend" at the Stone Building dedication:

I remember so well the first time I saw Mary Frances when I transferred to Woman's College in the fall of 1945. She had come over from Greensboro College the year before, so she was given the responsibility of making my adjustment to life here at Woman's College easier and happier. With her winning smile and cheerful disposition she did just that. If you've ever lived through Freshman Week on a big college campus, you can appreciate how happy I was to see that familiar face each morning as we started off on our various tours. Looking back on those two years, these are the things I remember best.

The days we spent in the cafeteria, baking cakes, frying chicken, making out menus for the Nursery School children, keeping records and serving on the cafeteria line. Meff, as we called her, was always among the first to volunteer when Miss Penn needed to have a special party served.

Her particular job as a member of the Westminster Fellowship Council was playing with children in a housing development. I can still see her, ball bat in hand on a spring afternoon, having as much fun as the children had.

During that first fall at Woman's College we were enrolled in a Physiology course. Each of us drew a Physical Education major as a laboratory partner. Since they were old hands at working with frog muscles and we were rank amateurs, we decided to join forces. By holding each other's hand we began to see the light and had a lot of fun in the meantime.

As you remember, those were the war years. We raked leaves, volunteered for work in the dining hall and entertained the armed forces during Sunday night suppers at the church. Meff was very much in evidence at all of these activities.

Our weeks in the Home Management House were among our happiest. I remember what fun it was making a gingerbread man for one of the faculty member's children who came to see us, the pleasure we felt the day the Stones came to dinner, the beauty we saw in our walks through the snow in Peabody Park, the thrill we experienced over the Sigmund Romberg concert and how Mary Frances seemed to glow with the excitement of it.

I remember other days and other things: dances and how Meff was as excited as the rest of us over a date, particularly with a man in civilian clothes; gab fests in the dorm; sun baths in the spring; stopping by the Junior Shop, as we called it then, for a snack; movies at Aycock; graduation and all the rest.

We studied a lot and we played a lot. Mary Frances thoroughly enjoyed college life and somehow managed to make most people happier for having known her.

To me, Mary Frances typifies what we like to see in all young college women. I am both proud and happy to be a part of this dedication ceremony in which my friend and classmate is being honored.

Mary Frances Stone was killed in an automobile accident in December after her graduation from Woman's College in June, 1947.

MR. E. J. FORNEY, for whom Forney Building is named, was one of the charter members of the Woman's College faculty, the founder of the Commercial Department, and the first treasurer of the College. "Mr. Forney's building" was dedicated on the morning of the One-Year Commercial Department's 1957 "commencement" exercises, and Clara Booth Byrd '13 paid this tribute to him:

This should not be a solemn occasion. The man—E. J. Forney—whose name and work we memorialize today had a ready wit and an enthusiasm for life which never left him; he loved the company of friends and the sound of laughter. He liked well-tailored clothes, good food, and good living. His sons and daughters, as well as faculty and students, called him irreverently but affectionately, "E. J."

In person, he was the proverbial tall tree against the sky. His hair was white when I first knew him, and he walked with a sort of aquiline angularity, a kind of princely swagger, as much as to say, "See this campus—it belongs to me!"

Mentally, I think he was touched with genius, and in that term I include originality and a passion for excellence. He was one of the first two persons in North Carolina to learn the new science of shorthand, which he taught to himself. The companion subjects, typewriting and accounting, he learned the same way.

When he came to the new school to serve as its first treasurer and as head of the Department of Business, he set up the accounting system himself; and altho he had never taught a day in his life, he worked out his own courses of study and methods of instruction. In fact, he later wrote the basic texts he used. Later he was for many years auditor of the City of Greensboro.

Most of the students who came to him were not well prepared, for the schools of the state were not equipped to prepare them well. He had to bring up their general education, as well as give them their technical training, all in the brief period of nine months. To fight ignorance with every tool and weapon he could contrive; to train the young women in his classes to a top degree of efficiency, and of personal poise; this was for him the Holy Grail. The fire in his own spirit kindled fire in his students. He got results. When he found one who gave evidence of what he termed "brain power," he set her upon a throne.

Some of his methods and techniques were, I am sure, rather unorthodox. He was a master of sarcasm and of humor, and often his classes were electric with both. One of his students told me of a characteristic incident. I cannot recapture for you the inimitable personality of this man, nor could she; but I can give you the story itself, almost verbatim. The classes were studying legal documents, with special emphasis upon legal terminology and phrases. On that particular day, this student had not studied the assignment—a fact E. J. of course soon discovered. Then the little drama began.

"Young woman, do you mean to say you have never heard of habeas corpus, or nolo contendere, or certiorari? Certiorari! You have lived to be eighteen years old, and you don't know certiorari! Well, do you know how to come in out of the rain? I will tell you what is going to happen to you. You are going to be sitting on one side of a desk, facing an intelligent man on the other side. He will dictate that word to you and you will not know it. You will sit there and beg for the floor to open and swallow you up. But young woman, that floor will not open. I will tell you what will open—that office door, and you will walk through it, never to return!"

By now there was a fascinated silence—nobody wanted to miss a syllable; and then laughter, in which E. J. himself joined, sidling back and forth in front of them, as was his wont. The point had been made. This student said that before the dawn of the next day she had mastered those terms, and others too, and something of value had been awakened in her character. Much the same treatment was handed out when he found that the daily newspaper had not been read.

I am sure that all of the girls in his classes were not happy all of the time, for there was then, as now I imagine, that puzzling question, "Why do we have to work so hard?" But after they had left him, and were receiving checks at the end of the month, and they knew they were succeeding in their jobs, letters of gratitude came to his desk.

He taught to some degree, it might be said, all of the students in the college, since all of them came from time to time to the office of the treasurer, not always to make payments, often for advice. For years, he regularly organized the freshman class and set it upon its way. For years he was adviser to the various student clubs and organizations, and gave them active support.

Mr. Forney's life was basically motivated by a great desire to help people. But for this college, two achievements were, I think, preeminent:

First, more than any one else he established the confidence of the people of the state in the financial operations of the new school—a service of great importance. The finances of any public-supported agency or institution are always vulnerable. Moreover, powerful forces were hostile to the new school, and wished to see it fail. Besides, North Carolina was not wholly committed to the higher education of women. The state was convinced, however, that as long as E. J. Forney signed the checks, at least the finances of the new institution were safe. They were.

Second, he made an immeasurable contribution to the economic freedom of the women of North Carolina by opening up for them a new profession, and giving them superior training for it. Hitherto the area of their employment has been limited almost entirely to teaching. Specifically, he sent his students into the offices of executives in the state, and sometimes out of it; into court rooms as reporters; into the civil service of the Government. Not infrequently they went from these positions into posts of high executive authority, and into homes, as wives of the men with whom they had worked.

There were other facets of this truly remarkable man: Within himself he worshipped at the shrine of culture. First among the "instruments of culture," to use his phrase, he placed the classics in literature, and the great books in history, philosophy, and the sciences. He was forever designing something. If he had been born a few decades later than he was, after the South had begun to recover from the Civil War, I think undoubtedly he would have been an architect. We can well imagine that he would have disdained to build anything lower than the skyscrapers of his time, and that his skyscrapers would have been a little taller than those of anyone else.

Mr. Forney would have been proud if he could have looked down the years and known that the state and his college would have honored the work he did here, as is being done today. I should like to think that he does know, and has turned aside for these few minutes from the pursuit of some other Grail, somewhere, to join us here.

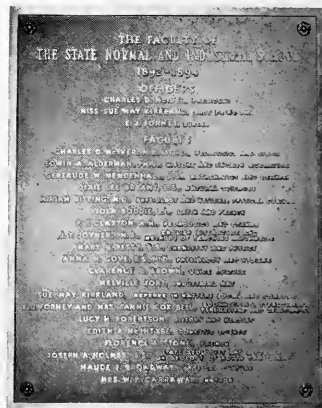

And so, for the several thousand women who sat in his classes, and for the thousands of other alumnae, everywhere, whose lives he touched; for the faculties that have come and gone, and for those who yet remain—for all of these, I should like to say, "Thank you, Sir!" and for all of us here today, once more, "Good morning, E. J.!"

The Forney Building houses the departments of Business Education, Economics, and One-Year Commerce.

Plaques

A bronze plaque has been placed in the entrance hall of the Administration Building to memorialize the original faculty of the College.

Listed are the twenty-one men and women who composed the teaching staff of The State Normal and Industrial School, the founding name of the College. Miss Mary M. Petty, only person on the list who is living, retired in 1934 as head of the Department of Chemistry.

The General Reading Room of the College Library has been dedicated to the memory of Dr. William Cunningham Smith. A plaque noting this dedication will be placed in that room: "... Scholar, inspiring teacher, lover of books, and friend of the Library. Head of the Department of English and Dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. In the service of this College from 1900 to 1943."

Elliott Hall

"People, not systems, are important" . . . Miss Harriet Elliott's motto will be inscribed on the tablet to be placed in the main lobby of Elliott Hall, the student union building, denoting the fact that the building is named for Miss Elliott, who was Dean of Women and professor of Political Science.

Three areas of Elliott Hall have been named and will be marked accordingly: the ballroom will be called the Cone Ballroom in honor of the Cone families (Mrs. Caesar Cone, Mrs. Julius W. Cone (Laura Weill '10), Mrs. Herman Cone, Mr. Benjamin Cone, and Mr. Caesar Cone, II). The two lounges in the building have been named to honor two women who are prominent in the College's history: Mrs. Mary Settle Sharp, who served the College for 25 years as director of physical training, instructor in history, chairman of the faculty committee on entertainments, and head of the department of expression; and Mrs. Lula Martin McIver, wife of the College's founder and first president, who first directed Dr. McIver's attention to the inadequate facilities for women's education in North Carolina.

Identifications

A realization that strangers at Woman's College have long had a difficult time determining where they are or where they wish to go has resulted in the placing of the names on sixteen campus structures.

The Alumnae House was among the buildings marked.

Committee

The instigation and direction of the dedicatory services and the markers have come from a special committee on Markers and Memorial Tablets, which was appointed by Acting-Chancellor W. W. Pierson and chaired by Ione Grogan '26, a member of the faculty and resident counselor in Weill Hall. In the committee's year-end report presented to Dr. Pierson and read at the meeting of the Alumnae Association on June 1, Miss

Grogan stated a number of recommendations for future consideration. Among these recommendations is one asking that the site of McIver House be made into a garden using green and flowering shrubs and bulbs. "The committee . . . feels that the garden would be an appropriate reminder of the homesite of the McIvers since Mrs. McIver herself was tireless in her efforts to beautify the campus and her own garden. The Committee thinks, too, that this garden would awaken interest in the beautification of the campus as a whole and of Peabody Park, and would in a modest way begin to engender the interest and delight here that the Arboretum has for Chapel Hill and the Duke Gardens have for Duke University."

taken our depth, meaning and appreciation because we have been nourished. The things we feel when we say The Woman's College—these things will not pass away.

The beginning is still different from the ending. This day as we look from right to left at our alphabetical companions and think of distance and time and places and responsibilities that will separate us, we know that physical separation can never overshadow memories. Again our beginning will be one of anticipation, and another star will appear for which we shall aim. In this process we will have the advantage of experience, of learning, of personalities; the advantage of a tie to a college whose worth, as stated by her Founder, is in "the mental and spiritual atmosphere of the place." This atmosphere shall remain, as will our tie to our classmates, as the symbol of the words of a song we sing . . . "especially the people—and a promise for tomorrow."

I am confident the parents realize and think you all must know that representing the Class of 1957 is an impossible task. Anne Morrow Lindbergh has said, "The things one loves, lives and dies for are not, in the last analysis, expressible in words." So it is with the Woman's College and my classmates. You must know that the love I express is only an echo of the goodness and virtue so possessed by them, and you who have made us what we are.

Thus . . . we commence.

AN honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon Mrs. Harry B. Caldwell (Margaret Hood, '33x) with this citation: Native and resident of North Carolina, former student at the Appalachian State Teacher's College and at the Woman's College, gracious wife and mother, you have long been "A Friend of the Land" not only as a member of an organization having that name, but in fact as co-owner and operator of a farm, and as a member of the State and the National Grange. In the North Carolina State Grange you have been the only woman chosen to the office of Master. As a member of various committees of the State and National Grange and under a variety of civic commissions by public authority your eloquent voice in this country and abroad has been raised with power and pervasive influence in the interest of agriculture, rural society, child welfare and family life, medical care, and education. By vote of the Faculty of the Woman's College and that of the Trustees of the University of North Carolina and by reason of distinction in service to society and the community, I confer upon you the degree of DOCTOR OF LAWS with all its rights and privileges.

Degrees were conferred upon 483 students in ten classifications: Bachelor of Arts 232, Bachelor of Science in Home Economics 73, Bachelor of Science in Nursing 1, Bachelor of Science in Physical Education 23, Bachelor of Science in Secretarial Administration 46, Bachelor of Fine Arts 17, Bachelor of Music 11, Master of Education 75, Master of Fine Arts 4, and Master of Science in Home Economics 1. With the singing of The College Song, the Woman's College's 65th Commencement was over.

At the end, it did not make any difference whose campus it has really been during the weekend . . . now we were all Alumnae.

Fellowships

THE Committee on Fellowship Awards of the American Association of University Women has issued its announcement concerning fellowships for women for 1958-59. Their offerings are categorized as national fellowships and international fellowships.

Both types are unrestricted as to field and place of study, except that the international fellowships must be used in a country other than the candidate's own. The minimum requirement for both is that candidates must have completed the residence requirements for the doctorate before the fellowship year begins on July 1, 1958. Awards are also offered for post-graduate research.

Application forms may be obtained from Miss Mary H. Smith, Associate; AAUW Fellowship Program; 1634 Eye Street, N.W.; Washington 6, D.C. The application deadline is December 15, 1957, and successful candidates will be notified not later than March 1, 1958.

Campus Facts, Faces, Figures

THE first W. S. Barney Memorial Award was presented during May to Barbara Terwilliger, the graduating senior major in Romance Languages who had achieved the highest average. Because the Barney Memorial Fund is not yet large enough to finance an annual cash award or scholarship, Barbara was given a leather-bound, India paper edition of Petit Larousse.

Said Dr. Meta Miller, head of the Department of Romance Languages, in making the presentation: "It is on just such an occasion as this that I long for Dr. Barney's gift for the apt word and the graceful phrase. For our majors who did not have the privilege of knowing Dr. Barney I should like to say that he was for some 35 years the head of the Department of Romance Languages . . . he was a scholar, a New England gentleman, an inspiring teacher, a friend to his colleagues, to his students and to the alumnae . . . his influence went beyond the state to the whole South, for he was one of the organizers of the South Atlantic Modern Language Association. It is not surprising, then, that his colleagues, his friends, and his former students wanted to keep his memory alive. They, therefore, contributed to . . . the Winfield Barney Memorial Fund . . . no more fitting use could be made of this fund than to make an award annually to a promising senior who had majored in Romance Languages."

MISS BETSY UMSTEAD '49, instructor in Physical Education and resident counselor in Winfield Hall, has been granted a Fulbright Lecture Award by the Board of Foreign Scholarships of the Department of State for the 1957-58 college session. She will teach at Queen Aliyah College in Bagdad, Iraq, and she will serve also as consultant for Women's athletics in Iraq during her assignment.

SIX STUDENTS were tapped for membership in Golden Chain this spring: Martha Jester (daughter of Betty (Brown) Jester '31) of Greensboro, Meeta Carlton of Salisbury, Jo Len Jamerson of Cooleme, Catherine May (daughter of Lucy (Burchette) May '30x) of Charlotte, Gail Steacy of Mahopac, New York, and Katherine White (daughter of Rachel (Aycock) White '29) of Dunn.

Sue Sigmon of Charlotte has been elected as president of Golden Chain for next session.

THREE OF THE SIX WOMEN elected to fill 29 available seats on the Board of Trustees of the University of North Carolina by the Legislature's Joint Committee on Trustees in May are alumnae of Woman's College: Mrs. A. H. Lathrop (Virginia Terrell '23) of Asheville, Mrs. L. Richardson Preyer (Emily Harris '39) of Greensboro, and Mrs. George Wilson (Elise Rouse '43) of Fayetteville.

A holiday was declared on May 8, and members of the student body and faculty journeyed to Reynolds Coliseum on the State College campus in Raleigh for the inauguration of William Clyde Friday as president of the University of North Carolina. The members of the College Choir joined with the glee clubs from State College and the University in Chapel Hill to form a chorus; the bands of the three branches of the Consolidated University were combined into a massive band. Members of the three faculties marched with delegates from 313 colleges and universities from throughout America and representatives from 76 learned societies, educational organizations, professional groups and foundations in an academic procession. Governor Luther Hodges, as chairman of the University Board of Trustees, presided at the ceremonies.

After the oath of office was administered by Chief Justice J. Wallace Winborne of the North Carolina Supreme Court, President Friday pledged a "constant purpose" for the development of "a more distinguished Consolidated University respected in the educational world for the excellence of its teaching and research, and loved by its people for its devoted purpose."

The two immediate past presidents of the University Frank Porter Graham and Gordon Gray spoke briefly during the ceremonies.

MR. WENDELL McM. MURRAY is succeeding Mr. John C. Lockhart, who retired on July 1, as Business Manager of the College. Mr. Murray was formerly associated with the Business Office at State College.

USING THE MONTH of May for comparison with admissions last year, applications to Woman's College are reported to be up 33 per cent . . . 927 applications at this time (May 27) as compared with 667 this time last year.

ARMCHAIR STUDENTS are being offered a television credit course "Main Currents in Western Civilization" over education station WUNC-TV: Channel 4, from July 15 through August 22, Monday through Thursday, from 7 to 7:45 p. m. Registration for the course, which will be taught by Dr. Eugene Pfaff, who will be on leave next year from the Department of History to study under a Ford Foundation Grant at Columbia University, may be made through Mr. Charles W. Phillips, Director of Public Relations. Tuition for the course is $14, and examination for credit will be held on campus.

AMONG THE MEMBERS of the Class of 1957 who have been awarded scholarships and fellowships are: Sadye Dunn and Dorothy Stafford, co-winner of the Woman's College's Weil Fellowship; Lu Stevenson (daughter of Kathleen (Garrin) Stephenson '28x), the Johns Hopkins Scholarship for Advanced International Studies (Bologna, Italy); Sarah Bradford (daughter of Lacy Lee (Gaston) Bradford '28), the Woodrow Wilson Fellowship in Art History (New York University); Pat Hammond, an assistantship in the Cornell School of Industrial and Labor Relations; Mary Louise Ledbetter, North Carolina Dietetic Association award for dietetic internship (University of Oklahoma Medical Center); and Peggy Smith, the Consolidated University of North Carolina scholarship, awarded annually to the Woman's College student for graduate work at the University in Chapel Hill.

MISS EVELYN COX, assistant professor of Home Economics, will continue her doctoral work in the field of nutrition at Iowa State College during the next session on a fellowship from the Southern Fellowship Fund.

SCATTERED to the four winds . . . that's about the only way to describe the next-year locations of the Everlasting officers of the Class of 1957. President Sadye Dunn will be studying in Iowa; Vice-President Lu Stephenson will be studying in Italy. Secretary Coney Crawford will be working in the State of Washington; Treasurer Mary Nell Meroney (daughter of Nell (Binkley) Meroney '31x), who will be married during the summer, will be living in Virginia. Staying within "ear-shot", however, will be Chris (Velonis) Miller, the Alumnae Board Representative, who will be living in Chapel Hill.

AT a meeting of the University of North Carolina Board of Trustees at the Woman's College on May 27, President William Friday reported that faculty members may expect a five per cent raise in salary next year and that additional funds will be used for merit increases and promotions in rank. He also voted that for the first time the university administration has been given authority to handle salary funds with some discretion rather than on an across-the-board basis.

Two resolutions of special interest to the Woman's College were presented and incorporated into the minutes of the Board meeting:

(1) RESOLVED: That the following tribute be spread upon the minutes of this meeting of the Trustees of The University of North Carolina:

William Whatley Pierson, a native of Alabama, came to The University of North Carolina in 1915 following the completion of his graduate studies at Columbia University. The University of North Carolina was then a small college in a rural State. Today in 1957 we, the Trustees of The University of North Carolina, give voice to our recognition of him as one of the principal builders of one of the world's great universities.

From the publication of Texas vs. White in 1915 to The Governments of Latin America in 1957, his original, vigorous, and objective scholarship has continued to enhance the reputation of this University. His brilliance as a scholar and a teacher carried him in five years from an instructorship to a full professorship at the academically precocious age of 29. A decade characterized by inspired teaching, stimulating travel, productive research, and wise counsel on the Administrative Board of the Graduate School made him the inevitable choice for the deanship of that School in 1930. Following consolidation in 1933, his wisdom, skill, and integrity as an administrator placed him at the head of the unified Graduate School in the three-fold University.

As the chief architect of the Graduate School for over a quarter of a century, Dean Pierson has set scholarly standards for teaching and research which have invigorated the entire University and enhanced its reputation regionally, nationally, and internationally. With courage born of deep conviction he has waged unceasing battle against mediocrity and has refused to permit the University to engage in any academic competition at the graduate level except competition in excellence. As the mentor of graduate schools, through his efforts among North Carolina colleges, in the Conference of Deans of Southern Graduate Schools, as Secretary of the Association of American Universities, and as President of the Southern University Conference, he has inculcated a respect for the highest ideals of scholarship which will long endure. His efforts at home and abroad have brought us talented students, generous foundation grants, able young professors, and choice appointments for our graduates.

A year ago Dean Pierson generously consented to assume the difficult role of Acting Chancellor of the Woman's College. The University will forever be indebted to him for lending it the mature wisdom, judicial temperament, sympathetic understanding, and educational statesmanship which mitigated in months the problems and frustrations of years.

We rejoice in his 42 years of distinguished and fruitful service to the University and to mankind in the cause of education and research. Hundreds of teachers in schools and colleges who have been imbued with his standards of excellence as they studied in the Consolidated Graduate School are now prime movers for an intellectual, economic, and spiritual renaissance in this State and region. Every great research center in the nation is under obligation to William Whatley Pierson for his contribution to the integrity of the standards by which both research and those who engage in it are measured. As Professor Pierson returns to full-time teaching and research—his first love—we, the Trustees of The University of North Carolina, know that he will add still further stature to the dimensions of the University in the distinguished professorship that he so richly deserves.

(2) BE IT RESOLVED that the Board of Trustees of the University of North Carolina express its grateful appreciation to John Clegg Lockhart for his long service as Business Manager of the Woman's College, and for his longer service and dedication to education in North Carolina. He has indeed given that most precious of all gifts, personal devotion, to many phases of the education of youth in his own state, from public school teaching to college administration. He retired this spring with the good wishes and gratitude of all his associates and friends.

John Lockhart was born in Orange County, within sound of the bells of the University at Chapel Hill, and it is fitting that now, at retirement age, he lay down his work as the commencement bells ring on the Woman's College campus, sister unit of the Consolidated University for which he has worked so diligently.

He attended school in North Carolina, and received his degree from the University of North Carolina, and from Columbia University. From a teacher in a small rural high school he rose to principal, then superintendent of two of the larger public school systems of the state, Wake and Mecklenburg counties. It was my privilege, when he was in Raleigh, to call at his office as a newspaper reporter, gathering news, so it was as an old friend that I met him again when he came to the Woman's College as Assistant Controller and Business Manager in 1943.

Many honors, both professional and personal have come to Mr. Lockhart in the years since he left the University, but there is no honor, we believe, more heartfelt and sincere than that of the appreciation of his friends and associates which we wish recorded today in the minutes of this Board meeting, and sent to Mr. Lockhart and his family.

In other action during the meeting, Mrs. B. C. Parker (Rosa Blakeney '16) of Albemarle was elected a member of the board's executive committee, replacing Mrs. C. F. Tomlinson (May Lovelace '07) of High Point, who did not seek re-election to the board this spring.

DIANE ROUSSEAU (daughter of Timoxena (Crawford) Rousseau '30), a sophomore from Wilkesboro, studies the picture of white-capped Eleanor Dare, whom she is portraying in this season's production of "The Lost Colony" at Manteo, in Newbold's painting of "The Christening of Virginia Dare" over one of the mantels in the Alumnae House. Diane, a drama major and a veteran performer is playing the female-lead of Virginia Dare's mother in the pageant which opened on June 29.

... on the "State of the College"

Acting-Chancellor addresses the students at their last assembly

IT is a custom, and I think a wise one, which makes this occasion one in which the Chancellor in speaking to you takes inventory or stock and reports on the "state of the College". It is a good thing, in business and I believe in education, to know in what directions you have been traveling in order that you might better understand in what direction you will be going. Last Fall in the Pre-School Conference for leaders of Student Government and on the Founders Day of October 5, I had occasion to speak in terms of the prospect before us. Today we might think of the past year in terms of retrospect with some idea of the assessment of what has happened. I trust that you will have some interest in this effort at compliance with tradition. I also trust that you too think that the past year has not only been one in which many events occurred, in which there was a change in the Office of the Chancellor, and in which partially by way of consequence many of us were to be newly occupied not only in budget making and budget defense, but in the busy day by day conduct of the affairs of what I have found to be an institution of complex organization. While attempting something in the nature of a report to you, I should trespass upon your time and responsibilities as students if I attempted something detailed and comprehensive. What I have to say therefore mainly concerns you as students, directly or indirectly. To be sure there are some matters of concern to students on which I shall not dwell. For example, one of these was that you were to meet and to be taught or influenced by four new heads of departments. Another such example is that there have been several changes in Faculty Personnel. Concerning such changes, it was the effort and steadfast policy of those who have been in charge of the Administration, to seek for Faculty and Administrative Staff persons of ability, of strength in academic preparation, and of adequate experience for the positions for which they are chosen. I can promise you that it has been and I think it will be the policy to maintain and to secure as vacancies occur a Faculty of strength in teaching and research. The ideal of excellence in this respect rests upon both faith and good works.

In the beginning of the year, both President Friday and I expressed ourselves as believing in student self government. Both of us professed to know this system and to respect it. Neither one of us—just as I believe no reasonable person—expects such a system to operate uniformly at all times at 100 per cent efficiency or without stresses and strains occasioned by the contrariety of beliefs, interests, and behavior. Such has not been the record of civil governments. For myself, I should prefer mistakes and even errors to be made under self government rather than uniform efficiency under a scheme of Administrators by autocratic experts — even if they are well-intentioned and of good faith. During my stay here I have been increasingly impressed by the support of the practice of student self government by the Faculty. I am sure that all of you remember the consideration given during a portion of the past year to the subject of the regulation of class attendance. In the Faculty I think there were divisions in opinions and conviction, respecting the proposals under consideration, but when it was learned that the students wished to make a representation concerning this matter, the Faculty unanimously voted to receive and hear this representation. While I am offering this as an example of the strong sentiment prevailing in the Faculty in support of student self government, I shall digress to say that this is also an example of the ability of your leaders in the Student Government Association, the Golden Chain, and some other student organizations in reporting and expounding student opinion. I think that the appearance of the four student leaders before the Faculty, their poise, their informed preparation, their moderation in statement were worthy of highest praise. In my judgment also, the conduct of the Faculty, its courtesy, the character of its questions and comments were highly creditable. I came away from this meeting with the feeling that a meeting of minds and a good understanding had occurred and that the relationship of Faculty and Students on this campus was creditable to both parties. The endorsement in principle of the student plan of attendance regulations was a rational accommodation of divergent views . . .

No review of the year relative to Student Government could omit reference to the adoption of the new constitution with its thorough-going adoption of the principle of the separation of powers in government, with its establishment of an executive cabinet, and its reinvestment of legislative power in the student legislature. If I may introduce here a parenthesis, I should say that it may be of value to the country for us to rediscover the fact that the federal constitution vests "all" legislative power in the Congress of the United States. If we could carry this principle into application, I think the whole country would benefit. If you will pardon this digression I shall resume my theme that I hope by saying that you faithfully observe this new constitution in this respect and stick by your guns.

TURNING from Student Government to the primary interest of the College and University which might be phrased as "Our Business is Education", we have already paid in other ceremonies our respects to Phi Beta Kappa as the oldest society for the promotion of scholarship in the country. There are other honor societies on the campus for the promotion and recognition of scholarship within departmental disciplines, such as Alpha Kappa Delta, Beta Beta Beta, Omicron Nu, Pi Kappa Lambda, Sigma Alpha, Sigma Delta Pi, and the Clubs for History, Botany, Chemistry among others. I have been much impressed by the activities of these organizations. I have attended some of the meetings of some of these organizations. I have witnessed the award of certain scholarships and merit certificates in some of them . . . I think the year has been marked by the significant achievements of these respective organizations.

Concerning matters relative to students, I am sure that some would want to mention the newly organized Publication Board. Others perhaps might wish me to give a special recognition to the purchase by the National Education Television and Radio Center of an original story written for and produced by the Woman's College Television Studio entitled, "The Christmas Painting". Still others would have me emphasize the three forums: The Inter-Faith, Social Science, and Arts Festival—Forums held during the year with great success. Still others would wish reference to be made to the four brilliant University Sermons respectfully identified with the several individual classes. Perhaps some would have us remember the great excitement caused by the fire in Mary Foust Hall. The fact that little damage was caused might have escaped notice. Some would want us to remember the visit of the Hungarian Refugee Student. Perhaps some would want to recall what may well be the unforgettable visit to the campus of the Poet, Robert Frost.

Finally, I think the acquisition of the Piney Lake Recreation Center has been one of the most notable contributions to student life. Its use by student groups during the year has been one of the most satisfactory features. I think the Faculty-Student Committee in charge of this property has rendered a service which is beyond praise. The work of Miss Leonard, as custodian in personal charge, has been careful, devoted, fair, and constructive. She deserves our utmost commendation. The following groups have used Piney Lake since the Center has been opened during the first semester; 20 residence halls, 2070 people; 16 clubs and organizations, 628 people; 7 Biology and Physical Education classes, 111 people; 6 Faculty groups, 612 people; 10 weekend groups (second semester), 165 people; a total of 3,821 people. I am sure also that you would join me in recognizing the fine work of Mr. Rumsey and his associates in the reconstruction of the pavilion as well as in the construction of other improvements.

WE turn now from matters of immediate concern to students to a major development, still of student concern, but affecting the whole College community. I refer, of course, to a major development of the year—the decision to close the McIver Memorial Building to further class use and to enter upon a campaign for the replacement of the present McIver Building. In another connection I dealt the reasons leading to both decisions made during the period of last summer when most of the students of the regular session were absent. The decision to close McIver Building for further instructional use made last summer was with the approval of available Faculty members and the authorities of the University. Had you been present on the campus, you would have been consulted also. I think of persons who were in consultation, just as all students on their return were aware that this decision entailed hardships and inconveniences of variety and great number to all concerned. I know of nothing finer in my experience than the cooperation of Faculty and Students in this matter. The dispersion of Departments, the location of classes in class rooms equipped for other purposes, the hardship on students who have to go from one extreme of the campus to another are all known to you, since you have time and again experienced these inconveniences. Undoubtedly instruction could in some subjects not be offered under optimum circumstances. The campaign for the new building launched on Founder's Day has progressed and has been materially supported by your efforts. From many sources I have heard that the appeal made directly by students to members of the Legislature had a favorable response. I think the institution is indebted to each of the students who have given their time, thought, and effort to this end. From all indications, of which I am aware, provision will be made for the construction of a new McIver Memorial Building. In the period of reconstruction that is to come the Students and Faculty will be called upon to bear further hardships. In fact those hardships may be increased by the problem of relocation of Faculty Offices, entailing a further crowding into space designed for other purposes. Let me report to you that the Administration has done all that is possible in the way of expediting the replacement by preliminary work in the form of the selection of an architect and studies of space allocations. It is thought that this reconstruction has been expedited by these preliminary actions and that something like three months time has been saved.

Another important development of this past year in which I think you as students may have interest has been the authorization of an Experimental Program in Nursing Education. The matter of such a program had been in discussion for something like five years. The proposition was brought into focus and a decision made to authorize the program by the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees. As you well know this program involves the cooperation of the Woman's College and the Cone Memorial Hospital. The long discussion by a succession of committees appeared to have reached an impasse by reason of a series of questions which could not be definitely answered to the satisfaction of the parties concerned. These involved undecided issues of policy on the parts respectively of the State, the University, and the Hospital. The achievement of last summer was that of a formula by which an experimental program could be started and carried on without an answer being given to any one of the debated issues. The main consideration that carried weight with some of us was that the controverted questions could not be convincingly answered until further experimentation was carried out and studied. Thus it was that a plan was evolved which satisfied most of the people involved. The two sets of resources that were available were to be brought into cooperative usage—those afforded by the College and those afforded by the Hospital. Neither of these institutions is committed to a continuation of the experiment, but both are committed in good faith to the experiment during a specified period of time. To finance the experiment the Cone Hospital has appropriated a sum not to exceed $100,000. The College is to administer the program, afford the instruction, both technical and academic, and provide supervision of the nurses until licensure. Two years technical and academic instruction will be followed by a nine months period of internship. The College and the Hospital through a joint committee will periodically appraise this program. We think that something has been accomplished. The Raleigh News and Observer reported that the plan "may change the pattern of nursing education in North Carolina"; we do not know that it will, but we hope and think that the State will come to know on scientific grounds whether or not such a change of pattern is feasible and desirable. We think that this plan should be of interest to many of our students.

CLASS REUNIONS: The Alumnae Board of Trustees in its meeting on May 31 adopted for Associational use a new schedule for class reunions. The new plan, which is printed on page 17 will be operative for reunions in 1958.

Instead of classes reuniting at five-year intervals as has been the practice for some time, the time-lapses will be somewhat irregular, yet no regularly scheduled reunions for any given class will come oftener than three years, nor longer apart than seven. Under the new schedule groups of classes will have reunions at the same time. Over a period of years, the groupings of the classes will change so that classmates who graduated before or after a given class will reunite with it. For example, in 1961, the Class of 1932 will have a reunion at the same time that the classes of 1929, 1930, and 1931 do; and in 1965, the Class of 1932 will come back with the classes of 1933, 1934, and 1935. Under this plan one will be able to visit with Alumnae friends who were in school at the same time she was, yet who were not members of her class.

The first, tenth, twenty-fifth, and fiftieth reunions of each class are retained, and the members of the Old Guard will continue to reunite each year after their fiftieth reunion.

As you study the chart, please note that the figures in the straight line across the top of the page denoted the years, i. e., 1958, 1959, 1960, etc. The figures down the left side of the page denote the classes, i. e., Class of '08, Class of '09, Class of '10.

Requests that such a plan be considered by the Board had been submitted by many Alumnae who believed that some plan should be devised so that they might see again friends other than those in their given classes when they returned to the College for reunions. As the plan has operated in the past, one missed her friends in other classes by one year each way; she seldom knew anyone who had been graduated five years before or five years after she had been graduated. After a six-months consideration, the Alumnae Board accepted the plan which has been described.

TEACHER-PREPARATION FOR THE MENTALLY RETARDED: A resolution recommending that courses leading to a degree or certification in Special Education for the Mentally Retarded be incorporated in the curriculum of the Woman's College was adopted by the Alumnae Board of Trustees and by those in attendance at the annual meeting of the Alumnae Association on June 1. The resolution reads:

Whereas in recent years the people of North Carolina have become aware that approximately 25,000-30,000 children of the state of North Carolina are mentally retarded and therefore unable to progress satisfactorily in public education without a curriculum geared to their abilities; and whereas in many communities classes in Special Education for mentally retarded children have proven their merit and whereas the 1955 General Assembly broadened existing legislation to include State support for classes for the educable mentally retarded; and whereas the 1957 General Assembly so far has acted favorably on legislation to include State support for schools for trainable mentally retarded and whereas both groups of children now fall under the jurisdiction of the State Department of Public Instruction; and whereas the lack of trained teachers is the chief obstacle met in all communities wishing to offer such training to their mentally retarded children; and whereas there are many teachers who desire to go into this field of the teaching profession but are unable to do so because of their inability to find adequate training for a certificate or degree in the colleges and universities of North Carolina; and whereas the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina, where a large percentage of North Carolina teachers are trained, offers no courses in the field of Special Education for the Mentally Retarded, either summer school or regular session; be it hereby resolved that the Alumnae Association of the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina strongly recommends to the Chancellor of Woman's College and to the Board of Trustees of the University of North Carolina that those courses leading to a degree or certificate in this phase of Special Education as prescribed by the State Department of Public Instruction be incorporated as promptly as is feasible in the curriculum of the college, both in summer school and regular sessions, and that the college award degrees or certificates in Special Education to any student successfully completing those courses required.

Beginnings are always challenging: they call out the best within us. As I sat in Elliott Hall on June 1st and listened to Dr. Ellen Winston's distinguished address on "Women in Today's World", and afterward, as I received from Emily Preyer the gavel which symbolized the start of a fresh task, I felt again the old warm glow of anticipation which every new undertaking brings to the heart.

Bonjour, bonheur! Voyageons ensemble!

Chapters

Buncombe

(#1) Instead of inviting the currently enrolled students from Buncombe County to a party in Asheville as has been the custom, the Chapter came to them this spring. On March 18 the group invited the students to an After-Dinner Coffee Hour in the Alumnae House, to especially honor the 1957 graduates from the County. Mary Elizabeth (Barwick) Sink '44, president, and Virginia (Terrell) Lathrop '23 represented the Chapter and received the students. They were assisted by fellow "Ashevillians" who are on the College staff.

(#2) Chancellor-elect and Mrs. Gordon Blackwell were guests at the Buncombe County annual spring luncheon at the George Vanderbilt Hotel on May 18, and Dr. Blackwell was the principal speaker for the occasion.

During the meeting the annual Anna Meade Michaux Williams scholarship award was presented to Glenda Humphries, a Lee Edwards High School senior. Mrs. Williams '96x, for whom the scholarship is named, was present at the luncheon.

Cumberland

Despite the fact that every other organization in town was having a meeting that night, the Cumberland Chapter's ever-faithful 20 came to a meeting on May 2. Gathering in the home of Elise (Rouse) Wilson '43 in Fayetteville, the group elected Josephine (Hunter) Deem '53 to succeed Ruby (Byrd) Campbell '32 as chairman of the Chapter.

Continued

Forsyth

Mary Ruth Linville reviewed the experiences of the summer which she spent in Europe under the auspices of the Friends Service Committee for the members of the Forsyth County Alumnae Chapter during March. The group met at the home of Florence (Sharp) Newsom '41, and plans were discussed for a series of parties to be held on behalf of the chapter's scholarship fund.

Guilford

After luncheon was served in the Alumnae House, on March 26, 80 members of the Guilford County (Greensboro) Chapter went to the Science Building to hear Dr. Virginia Gangstad of the College Biology department lecture on "Flower Containers from Around the World". Special guests for the luncheon included Dr. Gangstad, Dean of Students Katherine Taylor, Dean of Instruction Mereb Mossman, and Mrs. W. W. Pierson, wife of the acting chancellor.

Janet (Hooke) Moore '44 was elected president of the Chapter for the coming year, and working with her will be Gladys (Sessoms) Elmore '43, vice-president; Nancy (Edmonds) Hannah '46, secretary, and Fay (Sylvester) Arnold '53, treasurer.

Harnett

Katherine White, daughter of Rachel (Aycock) White '29 and president of the College Student Government Association next year, is a native of Harnett County. The Chapter there honored her at their Spring Luncheon on April 27 at the Cottendale Hotel in Dunn. Katherine, the principal speaker, brought the group up-to-date on some of the things going on at the College.

The group elected Ophelia Matthews '30 to succeed Lane Siler as their chairman for next year. Iredell (Brinn) Pope '28 was elected vice-chairman, and Nell Barefoot '42 will be secretary.

Mecklenburg

Members of the 1957 graduating class from Mecklenburg County were guests of the Chapter at its annual Spring Picnic on June 5 at the home of Margaret (Duckworth) Palmer '29. Also especially invited to join the group was Sue Sigmon, rising Senior at the College and current recipient of the Chapter's scholarship.

New Hanover

Alumnae and prospective Woman's College students in New Hanover County were invited by the chapter to their annual spring reception on March 11 at the home of Janet (Weil) Bluetenthal '2x in Wilmington, N. C. Mr. C. W. Phillips represented the College at the reception.

Onslow

The alumnae in Onslow County met on May 8 in Jacksonville to see a film which was made last year and which depicts the life of a physical education major at Woman's College and to elect a new chairman of the Chapter. Gwen (Wynn) Conkling '45 assisted Chapter President, Sue (Smith) Applewhite '45, with the program by narrating the film.

Helen (Bryan) Patton '45 was elected to take over as Chapter Chairman in the fall.

Wake

The Wake County Chapter made history at its spring meeting on May 2 . . . it was the first Alumnae Chapter to invite Chancellor-elect and Mrs. Gordon Blackwell to meet with them. According to the Chapter Chairman, Cora (Stegall) Rice '45, the meeting was "a big success! . . . Dr. and Mrs. Blackwell made an instant hit with everyone. Both are so informal and folksy, and he has such wonderful plans for Woman's College . . ." Eighty-five members attended the meeting, a dinner held in the Raleigh Woman's Club.

Janice Capps, daughter of Margaret (Teague) Capps '29 and a Raleigh high school senior who will enter Woman's College in the fall, and her accordion provided music for the occasion.

Undine (Nye) LeGrand '42 was elected Chairman for the next two years, and Virginia (Spruill) Currie '40 and Mary Lib (Purvis) Finlator '39 were elected first vice-president and treasurer, respectively, to work with her and Frances (Newsom) Miller '42, second vice-president, and Jackie (Yelverton) Woodward '46, secretary, who have another year to serve.

Wilmington, Delaware

"At long last the Delaware Chapter finally had a meeting after four long years," writes Janet Drennen '51, who was elected Chapter Chairman. Meeting at the home of Mary (Graham) Little '46, the twelve alumnae present decided to meet twice a year (spring and fall) and on a social basis only. They decided that they only needed a chairman, who will maintain contact between the group and the Alumnae Office.

Any Woman's College graduate in the area who has not been contacted and who is interested in meeting with the group should, please, contact Janet Drennen, 1508 Delaware Avenue, Wilmington, Delaware, or Peggy (Wallace) Ayres '42, Pelham (Whitley) Bookout '41, Betsy (Howard) Breckenridge '41, Helen (Trentham) Campbell '43, Lois (Smith) Livingston '45, Dorothy (Levis) Monroe '44, Mary (Ledford) Peake '32, Gaye Stewart '55, Mildred (Howell) Stoddard '39, Peggy Ward '56, or Meg (Graham) Little '46.

Jacksonville, Florida

Highlight of the Jacksonville Chapter meeting on May 28 in Winifred (Langley) Griffin's '43 home was the showing of a film pertaining to the activities of physical education majors at the College. The film, which was made as a part of a master's thesis in Physical Education, was narrated by Margie Gabriel '43, a member of the chapter.

The ten alumnae present discussed two methods for raising by fall a chapter contribution for the College's General Scholarship Fund.

Atlanta, Georgia

Betsy Umstead, instructor in Physical Education and Counselor in Winfield Hall, met with the Atlanta Chapter at a dinner meeting on April 12. And according to Chapter Chairman Mary Boney '38, "Betsy did a wonderful job . . . She told us so many interesting sidelights, and we felt as though we had had a visit to the campus."

Officers were due to be elected, but the seven-course Italian dinner took too long!

Columbia, South Carolina

The members of the Columbia Chapter brought covered dishes to the home of Lucile (Sharpe) Long '32 for a supper meeting with Barbara Parrish, Alumnae Secretary, on May 2. Before the group discussed with Barbara recent happenings and expansions at the College, officers for next year were elected: Chairman, Judy (Greenburg) Litman '38x; Vice-Chairman, Sadie (Rice) Reid '13; Secretary, Patsy (Hollyday) Hedrick '48; Treasurer, Alice (Fulton) Green '32; Chairman of ways and means, Eunice (Williams) Whichard '46; and Publicity Chairman, Connie (Edwards) Smith '48.

(June 10, 1957)

Dr. Givler was head of the Biology Department at Woman's College from 1920 until his retirement in 1949.

A native of Kansas, he received his Ph. B. and M. A. degrees from Hamline University in St. Paul, Minnesota and did additional graduate work at Johns Hopkins and Columbia universities. Before coming to Woman's College, he was professor of Biology at Southwestern College, Haverford College, and the University of Tennessee. During World War I he served as a first lieutenant in the U. S. Army Sanitary Corps.

In addition to numerous articles in the fields of biology and ecology, he was the author of a biology textbook and a biology laboratory manual. He was a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Sigma Xi Scientific Society, and a former president of the North Carolina Academy of Science.

Dr. Givler was an accomplished musician; he formerly played cello in the Greensboro Orchestra. After his retirement he turned his hobby of woodworking into the vocation of repairing musical instruments.

Margaret Penland Smith 1897x

(April, 1957)

After many years of teaching in the public schools of Asheville and her retirement, Margaret Smith taught in the Plonk School of Creative Arts. "A member of a prominent Western North Carolina family . . . she enjoyed a remarkable memory during her advancing years and continued to maintain a keen interest in the welfare of Asheville."

Mary T. (Smith) Jackson 1899x

(April, 1957)

Mattie (Moore) Taylor 1899

(October, 1956)

Elizabeth (Rawls) Strickler 1904

(April, 1957)

Before she returned to Durham in 1949 to make her home with her sister, Elizabeth Strickler lived in Virginia (Roanoke and Norfolk), where she was for thirty years treasurer of the State Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Lettie (Hamlett) Rogers 1940

For two years after her graduation from Woman's College with a major in Sociology, Lettie Rogers taught in the College's Sociology Department. Later, her interests turned to literature and, subsequently, she wrote four novels which were published. South of Heaven (1946) was the first and was condensed in "Ladies Home Journal" and printed in special editions in Great Britain and France. The second novel The Storm Cloud (1951), as did the first, featured life in China where she, the daughter of missionary parents, was born. Her third novel Landscape of the Heart (1953) had its setting in an American mental hospital. The fourth book Birthright was published by Simon and Schuster in March of this year and was chosen by the Literary Guild as an April selection. Critics have hailed this last novel as one of the finest of the new works dealing with the integration-segregation problem in Southern schools.

From 1948 until 1955, Lettie was assistant professor of English at Woman's College, specializing in the teaching of creative writing. She was not only a recognized author, but, according to her students, a craftsman in the field of teaching the would-be writer.

An editorial was published in the Greensboro Daily News the day after her death, which began: "Lettie Rogers is dead at 39, like Tom Wolfe well before her time and fulfillment."

Nancy Lee Kiser 1958x

(June, 1957)

During her three years at Woman's College, Nancy Kiser was especially active in the religious activities program, and during the last session she worked with extreme interest and persistence on an exploratory project about a College Chapel. Her hope for the College was that an interdenominational chapel would be built in the vicinity of Peabody Park.

Nancy was fatally injured in an automobile accident on June 1 in Broadhead, Kentucky, as she was en route to a summer job at Yellowstone National Park.

News and Reunion Notes

Old Guard

The Old Guard, composed of Alumnae who have been away from the College fifty years or more, met on June 1st following the Alumnae luncheon.

Annie (Kiser) Bost, President, welcomed the group and recognized sixteen members from the following classes: Class of '98, Lillie (Boney) Williams and Florence Pannill; Class of '99, Carey (Ogburn) Jones; Class of 1900, Mittie (Lewis) Barrier, Emma Lewis (Speight) Morris, Mytie (Scarborough) Coffin, and Miriam MacFadyen; Class of 1902, Virginia (Brown) Douglas; Class of 1903, Annie (Kiser) Bost, Mary Bridgers, and Nettie (Parker) Wirth; Class of 1905, Ruth Fitzgerald, Ethel (Harris) Kirby, Elizabeth Powell, Emma (Sharp) Avery; Class of 1906, Josie (Doub) Bennett. The Vice-President, Virginia (Newby) Crowell was not able to be present.

Among the guests present were Dr. and Mrs. Gordon Blackwell. Dr. Blackwell reviewed the McIver Era of the College as pictured in the book, McIver of North Carolina, soon to be published. He had found it most interesting and thought it would be especially enjoyed by this group. Dr. Blackwell concluded his talk with a discussion of legislation pertinent to the Woman's College.

Frances (Newsome) Miller '42 of Raleigh spoke of the work of the Legislative Council, which is composed of representatives from twenty leading organizations in the State.

Attention was called to the honor that had come to a member of our group, Florence Pannill, in the winning of several awards in the recent Fine Arts Festival.

During the business session Ruth Fitzgerald gave the following report of the nominating committee. For President: Miriam MacFadyen, Vice President: Emma (Sharp) Avery. This report was unanimously adopted. Mrs. Gordon Blackwell was elected an honorary member of the group.

Annie (Kiser) Bost thanked the arrangement committee for their beautiful decorations at the luncheon table. They, in turn, gave all the glory to Mary Fitzgerald, one of our guests, whom they claimed had done all the work.

Ione Grogan was thanked for her helpful services to the group.

Thanks were given our President, Dr. Annie Kiser Bost, for having arranged this most delightful program.

The meeting adjourned with all present enthusiastically promising that, if they could, they would be right there next year.

Miriam MacFadyen, Secretary.

'98 Florence Pannill's painting "A Street Scene in New York", won her the award for the most outstanding entry in any field in the sixth annual Guilford County Fine Arts Contest. The painting was on display in the Virginia Dare Room of the Alumnae House on Alumnae Day.

'99 Lottie Eagle, 921 West-over Avenue, Norfolk 7, Va., sent the following letter to the Old Guard: "I regret very much that my sister, Jennie, and I will not be able to attend the reunion. My sister is far from well and could not make the trip on bus or car. Please know that we are with you in spirit if not in presence. You may be surprised to know that we are still teaching!—doing coaching and individual tutoring. I am now coaching a man 33-years-old who is applying for a clerical position at the Naval Base here. Please give our best to our remaining classmates."

While visiting with her sister in Greensboro, in April, Eula Todd of Jefferson, was showered with gifts from former pupils she had taught here 35 years ago. Around 25 former students remembered their teacher who said—"I was so surprised. Do you know what I did? I cried."

Robert D. Douglas, Sr., 82-year-old Greensboro lawyer-writer, husband of Virginia (Brown) Douglas, was honored in a ceremony in Raleigh at which his picture was hung in the State attorney general's office, marking his serving as attorney general in 1900-1901. Mr. Douglas' daughters are alumnae of W. C.—Virginia (Douglas) Bell, Com. '32 of Greensboro and Helen (Douglas) Shoobridge, Com. '41, of Tasmania, Australia. The Douglas son, R. D., Jr., practices law with his father.

Virginia (Newby) Crowell wrote from Monroe that she was unable to attend commencement because her two sons, one from New Jersey and one from Florida, were spending the weekend with her.

Elizabeth W. Hicks wrote from Faison that she regretted being unable to attend commencement — the first time she would have been a part of the Old Guard.

'07

The fiftieth anniversary reunion of the Class of 1907 was a most happy occasion for those members who were privileged to attend. Out of a class of forty-six, thirty-four of whom are still living, fourteen were present — the largest percentage of attendance of all the reunion classes.

Present were: Blanche (Austin) Thies of Charlotte; Eula Mae Blue, Carthage, Clare (Case) Ingram, High Point; Mena (Davis) McArthur of Petersburg, Virginia; Ethel Dalton, Winston-Salem; Margaret (Call) Thompson, Mocksville; Florence Gray, Carthage; Belle Hampton, Chapel Hill; May (Lovelace) Tomlinson, High Point, Mary (Reid) Idol, High Point; Mattie Kate Shaw, Carthage; Willie (Spainhour) Greer, Chapel Hill; Inez (Koontz) Stacey, Chapel Hill; Lula Whitaker, Winston-Salem. In the absence of the president, Mary Exum, Willie Spainhour Greer, Chairman of the Reunion Committee, asked May Lovelace Tomlinson to preside.

Class of 1907 . . . 50th Reunion

Messages were received from the following: Agnes (Blake) Lueders and Janet (Crump) Murphy, both of whom live in California (Janet has children living in the East and makes flying trips across the States every now and then); Miriam Boyd (who was honored after she retired from teaching in the Warrenton High School by the naming of the "Miriam Boyd High School"); Rosalee Dixon of Hickory and Mary Exum of Snow Hill, both of whom were unable to be present because of the care of invalid sisters; Eleanore (Elliott) Carroll, Chapel Hill, who was in Massachusetts for the wedding of her son; Winifred Harper who has recently been confined in the hospital; Lena (Leggett) Smith of Dunn; Mary (Strudwick) Berry of Greensboro who was out of town; and Sue (Williams) Williams of Warrenton.

Since this was the honor class this year transportation by car was furnished to the reunion luncheon in the Coleman Gymnasium, and at the Alumnae Dinner in Elliott Hall members of the class were seated at reserved tables where they were served as guests of the Alumnae, while the younger classes served themselves cafeteria style. Many thanks go to those in charge of arrangements for their thoughtfulness.

As is the custom for each class following their fiftieth anniversary the class of 1907 will hereafter belong to the Old Guard.

Bertha (Daniel) Cloyd's husband, Edward L. Cloyd, Dean of Students, State College, Raleigh, retired from his post on July 1 after 39 years of service on the State College faculty. He was honored at the banquet meeting of the National Association of Student Personnel Administrators early in April.

'12

Three members of the Class of 1912 had a 45th reunion all their own: Mary (Van Poole) Phillips, Lucy (Landon) Lindsay, and Mame (Boren) Spence. They lunched together around a private little table, decorated especially for them in lavender and white.

Reports have it that the members of the class are already anticipating the 50th reunion in 1962. Planning this far ahead should guarantee a large group then.

Rebecca (Herring) Warner lives at Clinton.

Mabel Jettson's newly-found address is 349-10th Street, S.E., Washington 3, D. C.

Louise (Lucas) Thornton lives at 2227 McClintock Road, Charlotte 5.

'13 Clara Booth Byrd was made a state honorary member of Delta Kappa Gamma, society of key women in education, at the 23rd annual state convention held in Pinehurst in April.

'17 The Class of 1917 held its 40th reunion at the College on June 1, 1957 with the following members present: Ruth (Roth) Rypins, Alice (Poole) Adams, Etta Schiffman, Ann (Daniel) Boyd, Frances (Howard) Cox, Helen Oliver, May M. Meador, Frances (Morris) Haworth, Estelle (Dillon) Babcock, Isabel (Bouldin) Edmunds, Harriet Lee (Horton) Stall, Ruth (Kernodle) McDonald, Olivera (Cox) Rouse.

The Everlasting President, Ruth Rypins, presided and read cards from absent members telling us of their whereabouts and activities. The names of deceased members were read and tribute paid their memory.

1917 was proud to receive an award from the Alumnae Association in session that morning — a galvanized water bucket tied with blue ribbon—which was given for the largest percentage of the reuniting classes contributing to the 1956 Alumnae Fund—28% of the class contributed.

It was voted to send each member of the Class of 1917 a roster of the Class, giving present addresses, etc. Contributions to cover this cost were made.

Each member present told of her activities, hobbies, children and grandchildren from which the following pertinent facts were gleaned:

May Meador, Helen Oliver, and Etta Schiffman are unmarried, teach, have travelled extensively and done advanced study. Etta is an authority on Bird Lore.

The married members reported 22 children and 36 grandchildren. Five are widows.

Estelle Babcock is a Sorority House Mother at Chapel Hill, as was Ruth Kernodle last year. Ruth recently lost her brother and is busy closing his estate.

Alice Poole Adams, recently widowed, teaches and manages her husband's drug store in Gastonia.

Ruth Rypins, married to a Jewish Rabbi, tutors high school students to take College Entrance Exams.

Frances Howard Cox's daughter, Janet Speas, has written and published three books.

Isabel Bouldin Edmunds reported that her three daughters are all graduates of Woman's College.

Ann Daniel Boyd drives for her travelling husband and has as a hobby skippering a boat.

Olivera Cox Rouse is a church organist and director of Junior Choirs.

Frances Morris Haworth told of being sent with her husband to England to the World Conference of Friends.

Hattie Lee Horton Stall told of her son, a doctor who is at UNC doing research.

A good deal of information concerning the College's curriculum, policies and plans was given us by Ruth Rypins, after which we adjourned with promises to "write" and return at the next reunion.

Estelle (Dillon) Babcock's latest address is 109 Hillsboro Street, Chapel Hill.

Annie Hall lives in Salisbury.

Hattie Lee (Horton) Stall's address, 545 Reed Lane, Lexington, Ky., was given by Olivera (Cox) Rouse.

The Class of 1917 received the following telegram from Louise Maddrey: "Hollins Commencement makes it impossible for me to be there but many happy memories are with all of you. Best love to all."

Juanita (Puett) Jones lives at 224 Bosworth Street, Philippi, W. Va.

Ruth (Roth) Rypins' husband, Rabbi Fred I. Rypins of Temple Emanuel, Greensboro, was the fourth recipient of the Celebrity Night Award of the Sidney J. Stern Lodge of B'nai B'rith. In ceremonies honoring him at Temple Emanuel, Rabbi Rypins was presented a framed parchment "in recognition of his constant guidance and understanding through 25 years of service to the community of Greensboro."

'19 Dr. Ezda Deviney, newly elected member of the Alumnae Board of Trustees, is the winner of the annual Meritorious Award for Teaching by the Association of Southeastern Biologists. Dr. Deviney retired this year as head of the Department of Zoology, Florida State University, following 38 years of teaching. She makes her home in Tallahassee.

Mary (McDonald) Breeze's daughter, Joyce, was graduated from the Woman's College on June 2.

Class of 1917 . . . 40th Reunion

The Class of 1922 didn't eat as much fried chicken as some of its reunion neighbors in the gym, but it voted $175 from a remnant treasury to the proposed alumnae garden, and it supplied the most spectacular outfit in the fashion parade of classes.

Only 18 of the 94 who wore the green and white in 1922 reminiscenced and displayed grandkid pictures over buffet lunch and afterward transacted informal business in the spacious home of reunion chairman Sallie (Tucker) Mumford. The money for the garden was taken from $205 which when banked 35 years ago was $100. The donation was earmarked for a piece of garden furniture or other non-plant item in memory of Dr. Julius I. Foust, president during the class' four years and in whose honor the 1922 Pine Needles was dedicated.

Olive (Chandley) Crawford furnished the best-looking pair of legs in the fashion show as she broke into a vigorous Charleston in Sallie Mumford's knee-short, sleeveless, waistless, bead-fringed Paris formal which was set off by an apricot befringed shawl. Agnes (Cannady) Cashwell, the class luncheon chairman, made green-stemmed white carnations for each reunionist to wear with her badge.

Grace (Forney) Mackie came the farthest to reunite: from Point Pleasant, New Jersey. She brought along husband Arthur to the Elliott Hall dinner and also her winsome granddaughter, Valerie, 5 years, and lovely daughter-in-law, Mrs. David Mackie of Richmond, Virginia. The Mackies went from here to the Carolina graduation and June 8th marriage of son, Carter Gray.

Others of 1922 raising voices in a reunion chorus loud and strong were: Murriel (Barnes) Erwin of Salisbury; Jessie (Baxley) Sutton and Zelian (Hunter) Helms of Raleigh; Helen Dunn (Creasy) Hunter and Martha (Bradley) Bechtold of Charlotte; Charlotte (Daugherty) Rouse of Farmville; Ruth (Higgins) Hasty of Maxton; Mary (McDonald) Leary of Edenton; Joscelyn (McDowell) Williams and Ruth (Teachy) Berney of Asheville; Elizabeth (Stanford) Winn of Burlington; Athleen Turnage of Ayden; Hulda (Holloman) Ellinwood and Anne (Cantrell) White of Greensboro.

Ann Bridges' address is Box 267, Forest City.

Elizabeth (Calvert) Couch's address is 116 Pinehurst Avenue, New York 33, N. Y.

Marie (Davenport) Harrill is now in Pineville.

Grace (Forney) Mackie attended the dedication ceremony of the Forney Building at Woman's College on May 31. The building was named for her father, the late E. J. Forney, and houses the Department of Business Education and the One-Year Commercial Department. Grace lives at 1141 Lawrence Avenue, West Point Pleasant, N. J.

Vera Keech lives at Tarboro.

Helen (Leach) Macon has moved to the C4 Myrtle Apts., 27 Myrtle Avenue, Charlotte.

Joscelyn (McDowell) Williams' new address in Asheville is 272 Cumberland Avenue.

Hazel (Mizelle) Trotter lives at 1843 Harris Road, Charlotte.

Josephine Weaver is Mrs. B. Frank Daughety, 524 Weaver Drive, Lexington.

23

Virginia (Terrell) Lathrop's son, Terry, was graduated with honors from State College, Raleigh, in June.

Florrie (Wilson) Sherrill to Mr. C. A. Trollering, January 27, 1957, Lenior, where they are at home.

Correction: This is to correct the news item in the April issue of THE ALUMNAE NEWS which said that Polly (Duffy) Bridges was president of Alpha Eta Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha Sorority in Greensboro. Polly (Duffy) Bridges, member of the Woman's College faculty, is not the above mentioned person.

Pauline Roberts' permanent address is 1315 Highview Place, Honolulu 16, Hawaii.

26

Ruby (May) Caldwell teaches ninth grade, Junior High School, Newell. Her husband is a house trailer salesman for Faires Trailer Company, Charlotte. They have two children, Calvin and Caroline May.

27

Twenty-seven members of the class of 1927 and several guests held a happy 30th reunion around the bountifully laden luncheon table assigned to them in the Coleman Gymnasium. Catherine (Cox) Shaftesbury had served well as local chairman for this reunion and had prepared attractive booklets in red and white which gave interesting information about the class history. Two pages of the booklet carried the names of 22 deceased members of the class.

Following the delicious luncheon and entertaining program, the group went to the Visual Aids Room and enjoyed seeing colored movies of former commencements and their 25th reunion which Dr. A. D. Shaftesbury, an honorary member of the class, showed. It was great fun seeing each other on the screen! It was a great privilege to have Dr. Shaftesbury and two other honorary class members, Miss Jessie McLean and Miss Vera Largent, attend this 30th reunion.

During a short business session presided over by the everlastingly president, Susan Borden, plans for and publicize their 35th reunion in 1962. This committee, Juanita Stott, Nannie (Tate) Doggett, and Catherine (Cox) Shaftesbury, hopes to have many more of the class present in 1962 than were there this year. After singing the class song, the group enjoyed hearing news about those present and some of those absent. Congratulations were extended to Elizabeth (Griffith) Freeman who has four grandchildren, the largest number of any member present that day.

In addition to those mentioned above, the following were present: Christie (Adams) Holland, Phoebe (Baughan) Barr, Annette (Boney) Egerton, Sarah Boyd, Willie Meta (Brown) Goodman, Madeline Copeland, Agnes N. The Class of 1942 of Woman's College held its fifteenth reunion in the golf room of Colman Gymnasium following buffet lunch in the main gym.

Sue (Murchison) Hayworth, Everlasting Class President, presided over the meeting which was attended by about 45 members. Miss Emily Watkins, our Class Advisor, also was present.

Letters were read from some of the members who could not attend and all the members present told news about herself and her family.

Since our class has no funds available to pay postage and miscellaneous expenses in connection with our reunion, a collection which amounted to $27.10 was taken. Of this amount we already owed the Alumnae Office $16.75 on account. The balance was left with the Alumnae Office to be credited to the account of the Class of 1942.

Everyone present seemed to have a most enjoyable day and agreed that we would look forward to another reunion in a few years.

Our children are—Douglas 10, Drew, nearly 8, Dale, nearly 6 and Jean. I keep busy with the children, P.-T.A., Cub Scouts, and the many things mothers are around for."

Nancy (Ferguson) Barker lives at 1371 Club Drive, Bloomfield Hills, Mich.

Amy (Joslyn) MacDonough, 393 Waters Road, York, Penna., was unable to attend the class reunion in Greensboro and I just returned from Europe and have lots of catching up with our own little family after three weeks. We flew over and back and were participants of a sports car rally, visiting six countries while there. Needless to say, it was wonderful touring the continent in your own car and having all the details like routes, reservations, etc., taken care of by the rally organizers. It would have been lovely having more time. Since our graduation there have been many changes in the MacDougall household. I feel safe in assuming we have the youngest offspring—a dear little daughter 10 months old. Our big boy, Robert Jr., is almost 10. In 1956 we adopted little Dan who was 7 months old. Have a wonderful reunion and give my regards to all the celebrants."

The Woman's College Campus sounded and resounded with the screams and cries of hello as the members of the class of 1947 gathered together for their 10th reunion. Approximately 100 girls came back to the college to look at the changes that had taken place on Campus, as well as in ourselves.

Many spent the night in Jamison Dormitory, and talked and laughed into the wee hours of the morning. College experiences were remembered, and pictures of our offsprings passed around. We didn't feel any older then, but as the next day passed we conceded that a few years had gone by.

At the alumnae meeting we were proud that we won a "galvanized bucket" for having the most members present of any reunion class.

Afterwards we enjoyed a wonderful luncheon and program in the new gym. We then met for our class meeting with our everlasting president, Bootsie (Webb) Smith, presiding. As our next reunion is not until 1954, we passed a motion to have a reunion in 1959. Many stayed on for the alumnae supper which brought to a close a delightful weekend of reminiscing and catching-up on our activities in the past 10 years.

We each and everyone enjoyed our 10th reunion. We missed many classmates and friends who were unable to come, and we were saddened by the knowledge that there were three of us never to be seen again. We sincerely hope many more of us will meet again at the next reunion, and we look forward to it with much anticipation.

We have a young one, Carl 4 and Marilyn 18 months. Papa's duties keep him at sea and in foreign ports much of the time. This December, however, we should set down for a few months. Hugo's due for two years' shore duty and he hopes to go to post graduate school in Monterey, Calif. Last summer, while he was away, the children and I took a trip to Charlottesville, Va., where we visited Sallie (Wingfield) Hughes '49, her folks and her fine children. Sallie and her little ones had come over from Honolulu to be with her folks for a few months. We had a grand time picnicking, swimming, and renewing acquaintances. Sallie is back in Hawaii now. My roommate, Pat (McMahon) Stewart '49, lives in a new house in Bridgeport, Pa., with husband Dean and two little boys, Kevin 6 and Dean, III 2 months. Pat and I got together last June and treated ourselves to lunch and a shopping spree."

The STATE, March 9, 1957, carried the following item: "Tom Wicker, husband of Neva McLean, Winston-Salem newspaperman, in his new book, The Devil Must add a note of folk superstition and witchcraft. The story is told of Sandy Martin, a young newspaper reporter, but the plot is built around the murder of a father named Carl Rogers, which sets off three works of politics, sex, race discrimination, and the laying bare of old scandals in a small Carolina town. Perhaps the best aspect of this new book is the skillful and vivid picture Mr. Wicker draws of familiar Carolina scenes; but the climactic scene of the fire and violence and death is splendidly handled."

The Class of 1952 reunited in fine form on Commencement weekend with about fifty members appearing for the reunion luncheon. At the General Alumnae Meeting Saturday morning we were the proud recipient of a galvanized bucket (successor to a silver loving cup) for the largest contribution to the Alumnae Fund of the classes represented. After the meeting and a parade to Coleman Gym, we had lunch with Dean Katherine Taylor, Acting Chancellor and Mrs. W. W. Pierson and Miss Gertrude Mossman and our special guests. Following clever entertainment by talented alumnae, we held our class meeting.

President June welcomed us all and read notes and letters from absent class members. Anne (Hall) Todd wired: "Young Susan who is four months old keeps me away." Millicent (Simon) Ginberg says: "Nancy is 2½ years and Paul is 9 months . . . After all these years, I think I should have majored in child psychology or home economics!" School teaching and a husband graduating in navigator's school in the Air Force kept Nina (McLeod) Blake in Houston, Texas. She hopes they will be sent to the vicinity of North Carolina. Jackie (Jernigan) Ammons wired, "Wish I could be there. Know you are having a wonderful time. Tell everyone hello." The person covering the greatest distance to the reunion was Rachel Hackney, who is an Engineering Physicist at the Atomic Power Equipment Department of General Electric in San Jose, California.

The treasurer reported we have about $60 or $70 in the treasury.

Dr. Eugenia Hunter told us about her plans for the summer. She's going to Europe, traveling independently with a friend and "is looking forward to her first 'summer off' in 20 years."

Then each person at the meeting told where she now lives, what her work is, how many children, etc. Also we heard information about people who were not with us, and interesting things that have happened to people we know.

Generally speaking, the whole bunch had not changed much, although some may have been broader in the beam (speak for yourself, John). Our class who came for overnight were quartered in Coit Hall where we found Joan Roberts the counselor. She was very patient and understanding especially in the wee small hours. Joan is planning great things in August when she will take a husband who will really not be much more trouble than a dorm of freshmen.

Here's news and notes about some who were there and some who weren't:

Mary Ola (Lilley) Peele lives in Williamston and has a boy 2½.

Patricia Anne (Harris) Surrell is in Gainesville, Florida, where her husband is attending the university. Their son is three years old.

Eugenie (McGarty) Bain lives in Atlanta (699 Darlington Circle) where she is secretary in the training department of Rich's. Her little boy, Donnie is 3½.

Ann Shead works for the Signal Corps in the Pentagon in Washington.

The Class of '56 celebrated its first birthday in fine style with 45 of its members attending the Reunion party on June 1st weekend. Quite a few of the "56ers" came from as far as New York, Connecticut, and Massachusetts to be with us. Many more sent greetings, even though they could not attend the Reunion.

No one seemed to have changed a great deal in appearance, as we thought we would leave this until our 50th Reunion! . . . but there were quite a few "additions"! Some of us had, or would have, new members in our families; some had acquired that all-important diamond; some were earning Masters' Degrees and some were still "Bachelor-essing" it; and then there were some of us who "just came"! Perhaps for encouragement!

We even managed to take home one of the Alumnae Association's coveted "loving cups" as a special prize in having the largest percentage of contributors among reunioning classes to the 1956 Alumnae Fund. The "loving cup" was actually a 36 carat galvanized bucket . . . much more suitable for the Treasurer to take with her when we need class funds again!

Decorations for our place at the luncheon featured the class colors and memories of "The Mikiva". Pigtail at Titipu U. was the fashion for the day!

Thus the weekend was an exciting one, but altogether too short. We decided to continue "rag sessions" at the next reunion when we'll have even more news. See you all then!

1956 COMMERCIAL CLASS

The 1956 Commercial Class had a reunion too. Sherleen O'Connor was the luncheon arrangements chairman, and Sue Hege "stood-in" for Everlasting President, Marilyn (Mayo) Koonce who was unable to come from her home in Seaside, California.

Polly Allen to Pvt. Ralph Harrison Via of the U. S. Army, April 13, 1957, Mint Hill. Following his graduation from Wake Forest College, the bridegroom worked for the American Enka Corporation in Asheville. The bride joined him at his post at the Army Chemical Center in Edgewater, Md., on July 1.

Editor's Note

Your baby's picture has not been lost. Due to a lack of space and a tight printing and engraving budget, we have not been able to use the baby pictures in this issue of THE NEWS. We shall try to include them in our October magazine.

McIver of North Carolina

IN October, on Founder's Day, the University of North Carolina Press will publish McIver of North Carolina, a biography of Dr. Charles Duncan McIver, founder of the Woman's College. The book has been written by Mrs. Rose Howell Holder, and from it one will get "an intimate picture of the College during its first decade."

After reading the galley proof of the book, Dr. Gordon Blackwell, new Chancellor of the College, wrote: "This is a book which every Alumna of the College will want to read. It will give a new understanding of the College even to those who have spent four years there and have returned often to Alma Mater."

The book will consist of 275 pages and will be in a trim size of approximately six by nine inches, full bound in cloth with an attractive dust wrapper. There are seventeen illustrations, and the book is fully indexed. The retail price will be five dollars.

McIver of North Carolina will be available for delivery in the early fall . . . in ample time for purchasing for your Alumnae Christmas presents. You will hear more about the book as Founder's Day draws near, but you may place your orders now by filling in the blank provided. Remember . . . it is a book "which every Alumna will want to read."

What is Woman's College

What is Woman's College to me?
 A name, a school, the seal you see,
 A certain word, "Democracy,"
 What is Woman's College to me?

The hall I live in,
 A plot of earth, a street,
 Dean Taylor, Chancellor Pierson,
 And the people that I meet;
 The students crossing campus,
 The faces that I see;
 All races, all religions . . .
 That's Woman's College to me.

The place I study,
 The classmate at my side,
 The classroom or the ballroom
 Where my friends have laughed and cried;
 The "howdy" and the handshake,
 The air of feeling free;
 The right to speak my mind out . . .
 That's Woman's College to me.

The things I see about me,
 The big things and the small,
 The "Yum-Yum" on the corner
 And our spacious Elliott Hall;
 The gym class and exam time,
 Phones ringing in our ears;
 The dream that's been a-growin'
 For sixty-five long years.

The rush to breakfast,
 The eight-ten bell too soon;
 The streetlights in a rainstorm,
 Or the Soda Shop at noon,
 The mobiles and the abstracts,
 The million tasks I see,
 But especially the people . . .
 That's Woman's College to me.

The room I live in,
 The folks across the track,
 The people who just came here
 And from generations back;
 The men who bring the laundry,
 The others that I see,
 The men who build this college . . .
 That's Woman's College to me.

The TV tower,
 The statue of Charles D.,
 A maze of one-way streets,
 A faculty-student tea;
 Peabody Park in springtime,
 An empty coke machine;
 A weekend midnight curfew . . .
 That's what Woman's College means.

The words of Charles McIver
 Of Elliott and of Shaw;
 Miss Grogan in house meeting
 Speaks of Democratic Law;
 The choir sings in Aycock,
 There's a holiday at hand,
 We evacuate the campus
 In one exultant band.

Raincoats on Tuesday,
 Bermudas on back streets;
 With this school of health and beauty
 No others can compete;
 Our source of education,
 A school of fancy free,
 And a promise for tomorrow
 That's Woman's College to me.
